The Bible Is Wondrous

In times past the attack on the Christian faith came from the outside, from avowed enemies of the Bible who refused to believe in the God of revelation. Their work was openly destructive, leaving nothing behind but moral wreckage and the destruction of faith. Generally speaking, their attack on the Bible was couched in obscene language, and found acceptance among the worst of society.

That attack has failed. Tactics have changed. The assault now is from the inside. The attack today is on Christ and the Scriptures—Christ, the living Word, and the Scriptures, the written word. If Christ is fallible, He cannot be the Savior of mankind; if the Bible is fallible, it cannot be the foundation of anything Divine. The best response to all attacks is the Bible itself.

Sit down and ponder the marvel of the Book. Existing only in manuscript form at first, think of the thousands of copies that were made—mark the patient care with which many a scribe made it his life's work to produce a handwritten copy of the Holy Scriptures.

Today, think of the Bible having been translated, either in whole or in part, into over 500 languages. Sit down and contemplate what this means. Think of the thousands of devoted missionaries, who have thought it worth while to devote their whole lives to such service as the acquiring of foreign languages, reducing them to writing, translating the Scriptures into these languages, and then see the results. Think of all the toil and danger involved in the spread of the Scriptures.

Space forbids us enlarging on this happy theme, but touching upon it even in such a fragmentary way we are amazed at THE WONDROUS NATURE OF THE BOOK OF BOOKS: “Therefore lay aside all filthiness and overflow of wickedness, and receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save your souls” (James 1:21).
